RE: Site Inspection, Radium King Mine, M/037/007

On July 29, 1987, Frank Filas and Ron Daniels inspected Atlas's Radium King Mine. This mine was last worked in December of 1980. Access is via Fry Canyon.

The site is obviously very old and relatively clean of the debris that littered the area prior to 1983. Some of the inclines are secured poorly, but this does not appear to be a safety problem since they are partially filled with water and mud. The west site is showing considerable water erosion. Eventual reclamation will have to provide for channeling the water to minimize erosion in this area.
